I have three streams created in the server (backlog queue, read queue, write queue), these three queue all calls will be made from a single client. I want to make these three streams behave as if each call is independent client call. I am trying to figure out that how to pass a reference of the stream to each client. Sample code will be helpful. Please not that I just want to merge this three streams and have it behave as if they are three different streams. A: In pure Java, you can use AbstractServerSocketChannel which allows you to manage multiple sub-channels of a ServerSocketChannel. All connections made to this channel will be delegated to the other sub-channels (ch f678ea9f9e
